Accessibility Audit & Plan

Introduction

The Equality Act 2010 introduced a single piece of legislation which extended to all protected characteristics. This combined equality duty requires schools to adopt a proactive approach and does not just apply to pupils, but also applies to staff, visitors and future pupils.

Schools have to carry out Accessibility Planning for disabled pupils. The duties are the same as those in the previous Disability Discrimination legislation and have been replicated in the new Act.

Definition of Disability

A person has a disability if he or she has a physical or mental impairment that has a substantial and long-term adverse effect on his or her ability to carry out normal day-to-day activities.

Purpose of the Accessibility Plan

The purpose of this plan, based on thorough audit findings, is to show how our school intends, over time, to promote and increase accessibility to the curriculum, to written information and to the physical environment so that all pupils with a disability can take full advantage of their education and associated opportunities.

An Accessibility Plan must show how access is to be improved for pupils, staff and visitors (and future pupils) with disabilities in a given timeframe and must anticipate the need to make reasonable adjustments wherever practicable, including those required for individuals with particular needs.

Key Aims

- Increasing Access for disabled pupils to the school curriculum:
    - This includes teaching and learning and the wider curriculum of the school such as participation in after school clubs, leisure, cultural activities or school visits and full participation in the school community.
- Improving access to the physical environment of the school:
    - This includes improvements to the physical environment of the school and physical aids to access education.
- Improving the delivery of written information to disabled pupils:
    - This will include planning to make written information that is normally provided by the school to its pupils, available to disabled pupils. Examples might include handouts, timetables, textbooks and information about school events. The information will take account of pupils' disabilities and pupils' and parents preferred formats and be made available within a reasonable time frame.

Key Principles

- Compliance with the Equality Act is consistent with our schools aims and equal opportunities policy and SEN information report.
- Our staff recognise their duty under the Equality Act:
    - Not to discriminate against disabled pupils in their admissions and exclusions, and provision of education and associated services.
    - Not to treat disabled pupils less favourably.
    - To take reasonable steps to avoid putting disabled pupils at a substantial disadvantage.

    - To publish an Accessibility Plan.
- In performing their duties governors have regard to the Equality Act 2010.
- Our school:
    - Recognises and values the young person's knowledge /parents' knowledge of their child's disability.
    - Recognises the effect their disability has on his / her ability to carry out activities.
    - Respects the parents' and child's right to confidentiality.
- The school provides all pupils with a broad and balanced curriculum that is differentiated, personalised and age appropriate.

ACCESSIBILITY AUDIT

1. Is the School Curriculum Accessible?

An accessible school is one in which disabled pupils and pupils with ongoing or temporary medical limitations can participate fully in the school curriculum. The curriculum covers teaching and learning and wider provision embracing after-school clubs; leisure, sporting and cultural activities; and school trips. Planning for improved access to the curriculum should include consideration of school and classroom organisation and support, timetabling, curriculum options, the deployment of staff and staff information and training.

ACCESSIBILITY AUDIT

2. How Accessible is Information, Advice & Guidance?

An accessible school is one where information normally provided by the school to its pupils is available to, and accessible by, disabled pupils (and their parents) by means appropriate to the relevant disability; and where staff are well trained, aware, and able to initiate and implement changes to facilitate such access. Information might include items such as handouts, timetables, text-books or information about school events, reports, newsletters, and general letters home.

Schools have a duty to parents with disabilities to let them have reasonable access to services related to the education of their child or children. This is to make sure parents with disabilities can be fully involved in their child's education. The school should make 'reasonable adjustments' to procedures and policies or provide parents with aids to help them access their services, e.g. putting information in accessible formats. Schools must not refuse to provide a service, or provide a lesser service, to a parent with disabilities.
